Puerto Vallarta nonstop opens Mexico's Pacific Coast to Central Texas Newest flight on ultra low cost vivaAerobus from Austin

AUSTIN, TEXAS – The white beaches of Mexico's Pacific Coast are now only two hours from Austin, Texas. The first non-stop vivaAerobus flight from Austin to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, took off this afternoon out of the South Terminal at Austin-Bergstrom International Airport (ABIA).

From tours of the jungle to grilled marlin served beachside, Puerto Vallarta is a beautiful, cultured, luxurious vacation spot. The city maintains its unique Old Mexico charm with all the conveniences of modern life. The city enjoys over 300 sunny days a year with temperatures averaging 83 degrees. English is widely spoken, especially in the downtown shopping and dining areas.

Ultra low cost carrier vivaAerobus is only available from Austin, providing one departing and returning flight every Thursday and Sunday. Flights leave Austin at 1:35 p.m., arriving in Puerto Vallarta at 3:40 p.m. Flights depart Puerto Vallarta at 10:30 a.m., arriving in Austin at 12:50 p.m. Non-stop tickets from Austin to Puerto Vallarta, Cancun and Monterrey are available at www.vivaerobus.com.

VivaAerobus started operations in Austin on May 1, 2008. With its fleet of Boeing 737-300 aircraft, vivaAerobus offers national and international flights providing comfort, quality and international safety standards at market leading low fares.
